

Allege conspiracy, seek damages

Medical men file suit for sewer connection

A six-part suit alleging conspiracy and asking damages and a sewer connection has been filed against a host of defendants — including the city of Pleasanton, Morrison Homes, the Valley Community Services District and Ditz-Crane — by two Pleasanton medical men.

Donald Clemetson and Edward Schlies, who own a 20,000 square foot professional building at 2324 Santa Rita Rd. in Pleasanton (at the corner of Mohr Drive), filed the suit in Alameda County Superior Court yesterday and asked for damages that total $675,000.

The attorney for the two, Alan Grossman of Struthers and Harris, said however "We'll only get one (part of the suit, or $225,000) if any. What we really want is a sewer connection."

The basic problem is clear — Schlies and Clemetson must pay $920 a month to maintain and service a holding tank, and they claim that the city of Pleasanton, and VCSD, should supply the connection to a sewage treatment plant — the plaintiffs don't care which one.

They do ask for a writ of mandate demanding that they be connected to the Sunol Boulevard treatment plant, just as Morrison Homes neighboring 103-home development will be, but in another part of their action they ask for declaratory relief to tell them how and where to get sewer connections.

Grossman claims that the land was originally in the Sunol plant service district and was switched to the VCSD sewer district (even though the property is in Pleasanton) in 1972 without Schlies and Clemetson being notified.

Pleasanton City Attorney Ken Scheidig, however, says that no boundaries were ever set, so that the subject property was never "switched".

Regardless, since Schlies and Clemetson did not make the "list" of litigants in 1972 — though they had an opportunity — their property now falls on schedule B-2 for prior ity in connections.

Although 57 permits now exist for Pleasanton through VCSD, those are under litigation and will eventually be snapped up by people higher on the priority list.

The Sunol plant has 5.7 connections (the medical building requires 11.44), but Scheidig says that the land is in the VCSD service area and thus is not eligible for those 5.7.

And this is where the conspiracy suit comes in. The neighboring Heritage Valley development by Morrison Homes is in the Sunol district and 103 connections will be made to those houses from the Sunol plant. That switch was negotiated by VCSD, Morrison Homes and Pleasanton and 103 other connections were added to VCSD in another area.

Schlies and Clemetson claim that this was a conspiracy.

They are also suing for "conversion," or the fact that sewer connections that were rightfully theirs were taken away. If they are not given back, the pair wants approximately $225,000. The conspiracy clause also asks for about $225,000.

The final $225,000 section is filed against Ditz-Crane, Amador Valley Investors and the Singer Housing Company, who, in Grossman's words "purported to represent the unlisted people but wound up with high priorities (themselves) while the unlisted people got low ones".

A temporary restraining order was handed down yesterday by Judge George Phillips and Grossman will ask for a preliminary injunction today to keep Pleasanton from awarding any sewer permits at all until this matter is settled.

Judge Robert Bostick will make the ruling, although the 57 sewer permits are already the subject of litigation by Morrison Homes.

VCSD, meanwhile, has nearly 200 permits available for customers north of Interstate 580, but no one has asked for them.

After John Murphy's job

Raymond for economy and ecology

Valerie Raymond, campaigning for supervisor the second time and getting extremely early start on the 1976 campaign trail, may be more contradictory than controversial.

Determined, confident and dedicated, Raymond maintains she can balance her concern over environmental and ecological balance with the worries in labor circles over job losses because of dwindling work in the construction industry.

Some leaders claim the working man, particularly in the construction industry, is the direct victim of anti-ti-growth minded environmentalists.

Raymond maintains this need not be true. She declares stoutly that she has deep sympathy and understanding with the labor movement and says that environmentalists should not be thrown into a common heap.

Although she is commonly believed to share the beliefs of Livermore City Councilman Don Miller, perhaps the valley's prime anti-growth advocate, she sings a slightly different tune, perhaps a considerably different melody when it comes to the numbers game.

"Don is concerned with smog and I am more worried about sprawl," she told the Times recently.

Numbers do not particularly worry Raymond. In opposition to Miller's views she wants to avoid urban sprawl where, in her words, "acres of land we need for agricultural production, if not now, in the future, are being covered with houses."

Replacing these she would like to see much greater density in areas also zoned for residential, commercial and industrial use, thus saving existing agricultural lands for food production.

She would also like to see smaller lot sizes and does not understand zoning ordinances which require a homeowner to maintain a large lot whether he wants it or not.

This is in sharp contradiction to her own lifestyle. The Raymond family lives on an acre and a half lot on the outskirts of Livermore, (outside the city limits) and she would not live anywhere else.

While she admits to being a confirmed environmentalist and conservationist, she adds that she does not believe ecological policies should be followed to a degree that they are exclusive of concern for jobs and the working man.

Concern for the landowner does not seem to be part of her platform, if that is what it can be called.

She believes that a landowner next to a large development or subdivision should be penalized through taxes for his neighbors sudden prosperity.

Some measures, she believes, should be taken to protect such a landowner from a destructive tax load.

"Frequently such people will find their land zoned residential and commercial or industrial when there is absolutely no chance that their land will ever be developed.

All the facilities, sewers, water and streets, are already spoken for and being used by their neighbor," she explained. "Yet they must pay the same taxes on their land." She agrees with Livermore's BART director Bob Allen that some means should be found of taxing the sudden profits made by developers and landowners who benefit from public supported services.

In many other ways her views are varied and perhaps different from any one set political group in the county and certainly the valley.

On Stoneridge, the proposed regional shopping center designated for Pleasanton, she feels mixed emotions.

"One thing is sure," she said. "They can't have Stoneridge and hope to develop their downtown."

Developing those downtown areas, both in Livermore and Pleasanton, are more in line with her composite growth plans. Basically she would like to see concentrated population areas with a lot of open space surrounding them.

"That is the way it works in Europe and the result is that both European towns and the countryside are more interesting places to take walks," she explained. Neither does she believe that Pleasanton, or any city, should be the sole beneficiaries of places like Stoneridge.

"As a regional shopping center Stoneridge would be drawing from the entire area and everyone would be contributing sales taxes. There should be a method of distributing those taxes throughout the entire community," she said.

As an example she pointed to St. Paul and Minneapolis where some 14 percent of taxes derived from non-commercial and industrial developments are shared with neighboring communities.

"In that way everybody pays and everybody gets their fair share," she said.

Of Apperson ridge and the proposed dude ranch there, she admits mixed emotions.

"My main objection is that a decision is being made after the fact," she said. "The right way to do things would be to first have definite rules and regulations governing construction of dude ranches, then see if Apperson's plan fits." That too, she says, is true in many other cases, including the proposed Kaiser landfill.

Silvergate parents to gather tonight over bus elimination

A crowd of angry parents is expected to greet Amador School District Superintendent Bruce Newlin at Nielsen School at 7:30 tonight over the controversial elimination of bus stops in the Silvergate area.

The Silvergate Homeowners' Association (SHA) meeting will center around the dropping of buses to Dublin High School from Silvergate, which leaves the high schoolers with a 2½ mile walk to the school in the morning and evening.

The walk will take "a good hour" says SHA representative Kathie Waterson and she and the other parents are concerned that the children will be walking in the dark and rain to school. Dublin classes begin at 8 a.m. and the students will have to leave Silvergate before 7 to reach school on time.

One of the big complaints lies in the fact that Briarhill, a neighboring development, has school bus service, and is actually closer to Dublin High than Silvergate.

Silvergate students will also have to walk along San Ramon Valley Boulevard to get to school, and that road has no sidewalks and a 50 miles per hour speed limit in spots. It is also poorly-lit, and high school age students walking to school in the early morning gloom could be especially vulnerable to accidents.

According to Waterson, the district hopes to save $30,000 by leaving two buses idle completely. The SHA feels one of those should be taking their children to school.

Another complaint of the parents is that the district never bothered to notify them that the bus service would be dropped. "We didn't find out until two days before school was to start," said Waterson

"and then it was only through the papers."

Aside from Newlin, the meeting will be attended by Karen Kinney of Representative Floyd Mori's office, two Amador school board members and supervisorial candidate Valerie Raymond.

Lots of unhappy parents are expected to be on hand as well.

More trucks could wind up on Pleasanton roads

A major confrontation over the right to cross rail lines at a score of points in the industrial area east of Pleasanton may be shaping up, and the net result could be the rerouting of thousands more truck trips onto this city's streets.

"The real answer," a top spokesman for Southern Pacific Company told The Times, "is for the county to build an overpass on Stanley Boulevard." That structure would be an integral part of a new north-south road link extending from Stanley to I-580, tied also to the interchange at El Charro Road and the freeway.

"But nobody is working on such a plan," says Bob McDonald of the SP's engineering department. And unless there is some action soon, from the County of Alameda and local governments, then "we may be losing any chance at getting federal funds" for that north-south link including the Stanley Boulevard overcrossing.

MacDonald makes clear that his company "reserves the right to close down those private grade crossings, and we could do it right now, without giving 30 days notice or anything like that, if there is cause."

It was in just such a manner that Southern Pacific recently shut off access to Bush Road for the Pleasanton ReadyMix trucks. That route allows ReadyMix, and other small firms in the Kaiser industrial tract, to gain direct access to the freeway via another private road, this one owned by Kaiser.

Southern Pacific became disturbed over "certain abuses" of that private crossing and promptly shut it down. ReadyMix retained the services of Pleasanton attorney Joseph Schwab, and finally convinced SP to amend that decision.

"But the grade crossings are a problem," MacDonald advised this reporter. He noted that just in the southern extremity of El Charro Road "gravel trucks cross the SP line four times, and the Western Pacific line four times." One grade separation structure at Stanley Boulevard would eliminate all those grade crossings, and greatly serve the public convenience and safety also, MacDonald maintains.

"But the county has plans today for widening Stanley Boulevard to four lanes, plans that provide for no overpass or grade separation, and not really any realistic plan for right and left turn lanes off of Stanley into the gravel areas," the SP engineer states

Tennis Town wins

PLEASANTON — Planning commissioners Wednesday night agreed to allow a private tennis club to open in a former Volkswagen warehouse complex near the intersections of Interstate 580 and 680.

Operators Pietro Denevi and Anthony Martino have already sold memberships to the club which will be called Tennis Town and contain 21 indoor courts. Denevi asked commissioners to allow him to construct 10 outdoor courts and a swimming pool at a future date but commissioners said he would have to apply for a separate permit at that time.

They granted the conditional use permit to operate the club which is expected to open the first week in October by a 4 to 1 vote.

Chabot teachers vote not to strike

Teachers of Chabot College campuses in Livermore and Hayward yesterday overwhelmingly rejected a 6.5 per cent cost of living increase but voted "not to strike at this time."

Negotiators for the South County Community College District Board of Trustees increased the offer by 4 per cent over previous proposals during the 90-minute meeting.

Certificated Employees' Council (CEC) representatives took the offer back to a teachers' meeting later that afternoon, at which time teachers refused the bid but voted to delay a strike in hopes of reaching an agreement with the board.

The approximately 130 faculty members at the meeting "were not quite the numbers I had predicted," said Ray Edwards, faculty senate president at the Hayward campus. "We had hoped to get close to

The 6.5 per cent offer is figured for an average salary, and works out to about $1,300 per teacher. The previous offer of a 6.1 per cent increase was turned down earlier by the teachers, saying they will not negotiate below the 12 per cent cost of living nationally.

Edwards said the teachers rejected a strike call because "nobody wins in a strike." He did not rule out a strike vote in the future if talks stall.

The teachers voted to set up informational pickets at both campuses Monday at 7:30 a.m. Edwards said picket signs would read to the effect that "the board is unfair to teachers."

Another negotiation session between representatives of the board and the teachers was scheduled for Friday, Sept. 12 at 1 p.m. at the Hayward campus. No other teacher meetings were set, Edwards said.

It's time to fix those Dublin/San Ramon bumper stickers to your car and set the FM dial to radio station KKIQ, according to the Dublin Chamber of Commerce. Chamber directors will be out recording license plates as part of the Leprechaun Sales Days finale and feeding the numbers to KKIQ. The station will announce five Lucky Leprechaun License numbers per day for the next four days, and if it's yours you'll find a pot of 10 Dublin Daboons at the end of your rainbow. CC County Hospital

Malpractice coverage nixed

By RICK VOGT
Leshner News Bureau
MARTINEZ—Malpractice insurance for county hospital and other medical operations has been cancelled since Friday. That bombshell was dropped on the Board of Supervisors Tuesday by Frank Fernandez, assistant county administrator. And for the time being, the county has only a $500,000 deductible malpractice policy which will change to $1 million deductible on Oct. 9.

The cancelled policy covered liabilities up to $500,000. Supervisors reacted angrily to the cancellation and Fernandez' report that malpractice insurance at reasonable rates couldn't be obtained by the county.

Fernandez said two other insurance companies had quoted premium prices ranging from $500,000 to $700,000 per year for considerably less coverage than that offered under the portion of the liability policy cancelled by the Providence Washington Insurance Group.

A recommendation that the county insure itself against malpractice suits was unanimously approved by supervisors.

"This is sure a high-handed way of doing business," declared James Moriarty, supervisor from Marin County. "It's putting the squeeze on county government," muttered James Kenny, supervisor from Richmond.

"Why don't we ever hear from our insurance agents until they bring us bad news?" Kenny asked. "We pay the premiums and never hear from them."

"How come they dropped this load of bricks on us?" Kenny wondered. The move to be self-insured was recommended by Fernandez as cheaper than paying the huge premiums for the few malpractice policies that might be obtained.

Fernandez estimated that the county pays $50,000 per year because of malpractice suits.

The cancellation of the malpractice portion of the county's entire liability policy puts county government in the same predicament that private doctors and hospitals have found themselves because of skyrocketing insurance premiums.

Fernandez told the board that Providence Washington threatened to cancel its entire liability policy with the county if the county attempts to take legal action because of the malpractice cancellation.

The total liability policy will expire in June. Fernandez said that any malpractice suit filed against the county since Friday and until a new insurance policy is set up, would have to be paid directly from county funds if the county was found by a court to be liable.

Supervisors authorized County Administrator Arthur Will to arrange for continuation of the "UMBRELLA" insurance policy which covers malpractice with $500,000 deductible.

Haga is author editor of approximately 200 publications, and is currently editor of the medical journal, "Automedica," published in London. He also serves on the faculties of Dublin High School and Chabot College as a business instructor.

A specialist in philosophy and education, Haga received his master of arts degree from Sacramento State College in business education. He also has a doctorate of philosophy.

Livermore Title I assistant baffled by school's rejection

LIVERMORE — "If I had no other skills in the world — at least I can communicate with the Spanish community."

Pauline Huerta, dark-eyed and motherly, sat on her living room floor and poured spiced tea for her guests.

Two very concerned members of the Title I compensatory education committee were visiting. The phone kept ringing as sympathizers called to offer their support.

Pauline Huerta was out of a job and busier than ever. Mrs. Huerta was a familiar face around Fifth Street School for the past five years. She had been an aide, hired with federal Title I money to help teachers give special attention to students who had fallen behind in their work.

She got a form letter from the Livermore Unified School District, dated May 8, stating: "Unless you are advised in writing to the contrary by this office, you are scheduled to return to duty following the 1975 summer recess."

She got a phone call the Thursday before school was to open, Aug. 28, not from the personnel office but from Title I coordinator Ardis Loonie, informing her the Fifth Street staff didn't want her back for a sixth year.

"She told me, 'You're not wanted,'" Mrs. Huerta reported, her expressive face registering bewilderment and rage.

"I asked whether I could face the people who were saying these things about me, and give a rebuttal."

"I was told: 'You have no rebuttal.'"

"And she said something else to me too: 'If I were you I'd do something about your mental health!'"

Mrs. Huerta has taken 12 courses at Chabot College's valley campus, but she was told she didn't have enough basic skills because she hasn't yet studied new math and can't tutor fifth and sixth graders in that subject.

She has also refused to do tasks she has felt were not legally part of her job under the strict Title I guidelines — such as running off ditto sheets. And she has been criticized for not knowing how to type although she feels that too is clerical work and not compensatory education of the type intended by the federal government.

Ironically, she has been invited to apply for an aide's job at Marilyn Avenue School after being released from Fifth Street. "That's ridiculous," she declares. "If I don't have the skills for one school, how could I have the skills for another school?"

Among the things Mrs. Huerta has accomplished while at Fifth Street: She has started a program of getting Rec District free swimming passes for needy families; gathered up unclaimed children's sweaters, washed and mended them and given them to children who needed them; set up a program of speakers from the Cancer Society; arranged for after-school activities with Twin Valley YMCA (while it was located downtown previous to moving to Pleasanton); and arranged for free evening courses for needy adults.

"I had the nerve to go out and ask people for things for Fifth Street School," Mrs. Huerta says bitterly. "Maybe that's why they didn't like me."

"Or maybe I took too many courses and became too threatening to the teachers."

"Or maybe it's just that I'm Mexican."

Mrs. Huerta says she hears her old position hasn't been filled yet — the woman it was offered to turned it down. She doesn't want the $3,000-a-year position back now because of her hard feelings about coordinator Loonie (who had no comment to make on the controversy) and her critical questions about how the Title I program is run in general.

"They talk in alphabets," she complains. "DAC, PAC, FY — the parents on the committee have no idea what they're saying."

Mrs. Huerta claims support from the parents whose children she has helped over the years as well as from Title I committee members. She has filed a grievance through the California School Employees Association (CSEA), the statewide organization for non-teaching personnel, and is scheduled to meet with the school board in closed session to see whether her rights have been violated.

Meanwhile, the proud and articulate woman says: "I was going to sue but I really don't want my old job back. I couldn't work under Ardis Loonie under any circumstances."

"I don't want to destroy the Title I program — it's helping a lot of kids who otherwise wouldn't get the attention."

"But my dignity is just in shreds."

Absent Burr forces delay on development decision again

Alameda County Bureau OAKLAND — The appeal against Edwin Burr's proposed Sunol Ridge development was continued yesterday by the Alameda County Board of Supervisors for the second time in as many weeks when a bank executive told supervisors Burr is out of the country.

N. A. Blendernan, an Oakland trust department executive for the Bank of America, told supervisors the bank was informed just last week of the pending appeal by Hayward professor Sherman Lewis.

Bank of America, as trustee under the will of Burr's father-in-law, Esmond Tyler, holds the deed in trust for Tyler's heirs, Blendernan said.

He spoke with the heirs' attorney, whose name he could not recall, and received permission to speak for the absent Edwin Burr, he said.

Blendernan said the bank's trust department staff had been working exhaustively to "catch up" with details of the appeal.

Burr received county planning commissioners' approval to proceed with his proposed eight parcel development on 1,500 acres of Sunol Ridge over objections of the commission's staff.

The development calls for eight 100-plus acre parcels, each containing a five-acre "developed" portion for the owner, plus 555 acres kept open to all owners.

Supervisors chief concern is the proposed 23-degree grade road to the ridge, plus sewage and water service to the remote site. The planning commission's staff balked at Burr's plan for the steep, narrow and winding road, but Burr countered that a locked gate would preclude public entry and hence the county's liability for any accidents on the road.

Owners and emergency service crews — sheriff's deputies and firemen — also would have keys.

Blendernan was told Burr would be back Oct. 1 or 2, but county counsel Richard Moore said the developer would not return until mid-October.

Supervisors will hear the matter at their Nov. 6 meeting.

Court overrules deputy penalty

Leshner News Bureau MARTINEZ—A Superior Court judge has ordered Contra Costa County officials to overrule a suspension given a deputy sheriff. Superior Court Judge Jackson C. Davis has signed a decision ordering the county to set aside a five-day suspension given Sgt. Larry Tannehill in February by Sheriff Harry Ramsay.

The county has until Sept. 19 to take the action or contest the court order.

Tannehill was suspended after an alleged affair with Roberta Kline, a deputy in the department.

Ms. Kline committed suicide Jan. 2.

In asking the court to overturn the five-day suspension, Tannehill claimed the suspension was uncalled for, claiming officials had no right to discipline him for any off duty activities.

Tannehill named the county, Ramsay, the Civil Service Commission, and the members of the commission in his court complaint.

Tannehill is a 15-year veteran of the sheriff's department.

Seniors called to diabetic clinic

LIVERMORE — Senior citizens are invited to hear more about diabetes — and to find out whether they have the disease — at a free clinic Monday morning, Sept. 15.

Anyone who has been attending blood pressure check-up clinics is invited to the diabetes clinic, which will be at 11 a.m. at the Recreation Center, Eighth and H Streets.

Senior Service director Lillian Snorf asks anyone planning to attend the Monday clinic to drop by the office in the Rec Center no later than Friday to pick up a urine vial and instructions. She'll answer any questions about the clinic; the Senior Center number is 443-1150.

She's Cowbelle of the Year!

Although not entirely dedicated to the ranch business or horseback riding yet playing a part in each, Edna Dobbel was selected "Cowbelle Of the Year" by the Alameda County Cowbelles for her dedication to other organizations as well as her loyalty to the Cowbelles.

Edna is a charter member of the Cowbelles, a past president of the organization serving in 1967-68, helped with many first place awards for the Cowbelle's fair booths, and served on numerous committees. Her beef promotion book was entered in the first California Cowbelle competition.

She also has been active in the Native Daughters and Rebekahs having gone through the chairs in both of these clubs. She is also an active member in the Amador - Livermore Historical Society, and will be working to restore historical frescoes in Old St. Raymond's Church in Dublin.

The quiet, artistic woman of today was born in Modesto, and at 14 years of age moved with her family to San Leandro to settle on a farm at the foot of Pergola Hill. The family ran a service station, where Edna pumped gas and changed tires. She also helped milk the farm's cows.

She met her late husband, John, at Hayward High School, and later attended the California College of Arts and Crafts in San Francisco. Her son, John Jr., is now in the construction business as was his father. A second son, Roger, inherited Edna's artistic talents and works as an interior decorator in Piedmont.

Both Edna and her husband enjoyed going to round-ups, helping friends gather and brand cattle. The couple also spent many hours attending team ropings, with their favorite place being Hidden Valley Ranch near San Jose.

Edna enjoys being a homemaker and is an excellent seamstress. She is a recognized painter as well as an ardent lover and collector of antiques.

The Cowbelles will be holding a Country Fair on Sunday, Sept. 21 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Livermore Rod and Gun Club. The Cattlemen's Association of which the Cowbelles are an auxiliary, will hold a dance Oct. 25 at the Alameda County Fairgrounds. Cattlemen are permitted to invite a guest.

Treat your family to fruits and vegetables canned safely

There's something about canning your own fruits and vegetables that tells your friends and family you care.

But if you decide to package your own, be sure you learn how to can safely — and protect your family from the bacteria and enzymes that cause spoilage.

"Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables," published by the Department of Agriculture, tells you how to can safely and efficiently. The guide is available for 45 cents from Consumer Information, Dept. 47, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Newer varieties of tomatoes with less acidity, are especially susceptible to the growth of highly toxic organisms which can cause botulism. Write for a free copy of "Home Canning Safety" from Consumer Information, Dept. 51, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Plant Talk

Cowbelle of the Year Edna Dobbel

By SUE JOHNSON
I would like to share some information about the different types of light exposure for plants which I explained to the Pleasanton Newcomers last week.

The east-facing window is probably the most ideal kind of exposure, especially in the valley. I consider it the ideal light — enough sunshine for sun-loving plants if placed close to windows, yet not too much light for shade tolerant plants placed back from the window.

Some of the plants which enjoy this exposure are African violets, their cousins the episcias, and all of the varieties of begonias. Pileas (both the hanging and upright Mexican artillery plant) also love an eastern exposure.

A southern exposure receives sunshine for a duration of six hours or more. Some of the plants that thrive in the sun are the burros tail, blood-leaf, shrimp plant, cacti and succulents. If you have a sunny south window in your kitchen, why not try growing herbs?

Western sun, like southern, is hot bright and harsh. Asparagus ferns, and Ficus Family (rubber plant, fiddle-leaf fig, creeping fig, ficus benjamina) are great for western windows. Swedish ivy, also known as Creeping Charlie in California (sounds like a dirty old man!) also thrives in a west window.

Notice how the leaves or fronds sit up on the Boston ferns, spider plants and piggy-backs when placed in strong indirect light? These plants are often mistakenly placed in low light exposures.

My next column will feature low light exposures.

Sliced cooked carrots may be treated to a cheese sauce. Prepared this way, the dish is particularly inviting when it is sprinkled with buttered crumbs and browned under the broiler.

Toastmasters will sponsor eight-week Speechcraft workshop in Dublin

The first official act of the new slate of officers for the Amador Valley Toastmasters was the announcement of a community program called Speechcraft.

Speechcraft, a workshop in communication and leadership, will be presented by experienced members of the Dublin Toastmasters Club. The eight-session workshop will be open to both men and women.

Each session will cover a different aspect of speech preparation, speaking and listening. The purpose of the sessions is to develop self-confidence and poise, and the ability to present a message or idea effectively.

The first session is scheduled Sept. 27 at the Northern California Savings and Loan Association in Dublin. Sessions will be held on consecutive Thursday mornings from 7 to 8:30 a.m. Cost of the workshop is $15 per person.

Graduation certificates will be awarded at the end of the course. For more information contact Jay Knauer at 846-8812 or Charlie Schooler 447-7730.

The Amador Valley Toastmasters Club installed its new officers at the home of Rocky Puffer with a steak fry and pool party. Leonard Pratt was initiated as president when he was allegedly pushed into the pool.

Phill Schultz, area governor, was installing officer.

Jerry Swift, outgoing president, received an award for an outstanding term in office.

Rocky Puffer hosted the installation party for the Amador Valley Toastmasters.

Kappa Gamma Chapter convenes this afternoon

Mrs. Virginia Smith, president of Kappa Gamma Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, will convene the first meeting of her new term at a poolside luncheon today. Mrs. Ellie March will co-host the group at her swim club.

Plans for the coming year will be outlined, and Mrs. Smith will report on the sorority's international convention which she attended at Portland, Ore., this summer. At the convention, Mrs. Smith was honored with presentation of a 25-year service award by the co-founder of the international sorority.

Keynote speaker at the convention was Danny Thomas who spoke of the leukemia research at St. Jude's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. The hospital will build a new wing dedicated to Epsilon Sigma Alpha as a result of the sorority's donation of over one million dollars.

Epsilon Sigma Alpha International is a women's organization with the three-fold purpose of education, service and association. Chapters are located throughout the United States and in ten foreign countries. Local chapters are encouraged to develop educational, philanthropic and social programs for their members. For more information about ESA and Kappa Gamma Chapter contact Mrs. Smith at 447-4079.

Out of 5,000 American whiskeys, guess who's Number 3.

It's Kessler. And how did we reach this lofty status? Three words tell the story. Smooth as Silk. That's the promise we make on our label, and live up to in our bottle. Admittedly, our success has been a quiet one. But then, when you let your smoothness do the talking, America gets the message.

Smooth as Silk Kessler.
Now the third largest selling American whiskey.

TOUCHING, FEELING, SEEING, LEARNING. An estimated 3,000 people of all ages experienced and enjoyed the annual woodcarving show last weekend at Livermore's Carnegie Park. The viewers responded with pleasure to the open outdoor setting and the open friendliness of the 50 - odd carvers who participated in the show, according to Pat Finigan of Livermore, host director of the tri-county regional show.

THE RELAXED MOOD OF FREEWHEELING CURIOSITY was fostered by the show's sponsor, the Tri - County Chapter of the California Carvers Guild, which provided a special information booth and encouraged carvers to demonstrate their skills. Special guests at the show were the guild's state president and chief judge, as well as Bud Frack, well-known carver from San Jose.

PICTURES CLOCKWISE FROM TOP LEFT: "Zeus" by Larry Viale of Saratoga took only 130 hours of work to complete. Carver Lee Knowlson made this hutch as a Christmas present for his granddaughter Tiffany Tosta. Arthur Halmkamp, a carver himself, and little Nathan Cook mutually admire black walnut sculpture by Don Homan of Livermore which says: "Yes, please touch." An inchworm on a sugar maple leaf is captured in wood. Fellow carvers admire manzanita wood sculpture by Bob Beety entitled "Lady Denbeigh."

These original hand - covered character of wood by Ray Asterlind of San Rafael were very popular among show - goers. Arthur Rudd, president of the Livermore Chapter of the California Carvers Guild, demonstrated his skill at the show saying, "Sometimes I keep a piece of wood for years, until I get an idea of how to use it to its best advantage." Finally, the show was not without examples of abstract artistic expression.

inside the arts

Something not very amusing happened to A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM as it progressed toward an opening last Friday night in Walnut Creek.

The famous knockabout musical comedy has a practically indestructible plot and the music, while not memorable, is certainly pleasing, lively and appropriate. An excellent cast, including Dennis Kohles, Dennis Ratto, Carl Daddio and Brett Moore, worked wearily against monumental odds but did not entirely overcome the challenges set for them.

The villain of the piece has to be Director-Choreographer Actor George Felker, III who has taken the individual styles of these actors and forced them into an awkward and unbecoming mold. Nobody on stage was a Zero Mostel or a Phil Silvers, but they didn't have to be imitative of the professional greats. Kohles and Ratto are capable of generating their own point and counter-point; of being able to bounce Pseudolus off Hysterium and come up with their particular brand of comic insanity. They ended up too much alike in character which greatly diminished the humorous potential. They were also forced into gyrations and violent action that were not amusing. No one seemed to understand you can be very funny and occasionally attractive in a less frenetic vein.

Carl Daddio is to be congratulated for bringing a special innocence to the role of Hero. Daddio is making great strides with his stage presence and he handles the vocal requirements more than adequately. He was even good enough to handle a duet with Philia almost singlehandedly. Georgia Lee, as the lady in question, was either totally overcome with stage-fright or minimally talented. Whichever, no one should be burdened with such inadequacies — neither actor or audience.

SETTING THE SCENE

Brett Moore, as Lycus, was a breath of fresh air whenever he put in an appearance. He seemed to stabilize the erratic action whenever he was on stage. Jim Harper as Senex was also very amusing; a strongly defined character who could have given a lesson or two in timing to the principals.

Realizing it is very easy to 'armchair' the creation of a production, I'd still have to say the impression is that Felker, III was wearing too many hats. As a director, he let too many details get by him and made some pretty sad decisions. As a choreographer, he failed to remember that an inanimate object can be as interesting as a bouncing ball. And, as an actor, he was so busy doing other things he never defined his role as Miles Gloriosus. Better a slice of pizza than attempting to consume the whole pie. It's a matter of digestion.

Vitalio, as Erronius, was delightful and unusual taking full advantage of his 'Cuban' accent on the cobbled streets of Rome. Lenore Lundholm was a properly domineering Domina.

It would be my opinion those Proteans and Courtisans have the most fun in A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM. They get to expend a lot of energy on all kinds of gymnastics and don't have to worry about impressing an audience with anything more than their looks and their athletic abilities. All twelve of them were lively, colorful and only slightly tiring because of the hyper-thyroid antics they were forced to go through.

A final word of dissatisfaction. There was a mammoth bridge that kept appearing from off-stage left. It was huge, ugly and the only thing missing was a few million gallons of water from the Tiber. This set piece, so unnecessary and out of place, rather set the tone for the whole production. It's too bad the show's not all bad. There are many redeeming features and it's worth seeing if your friends are in it or you aren't too demanding. Contra Costa Musical Theatre can do better and I'm looking forward to it.

Del Valle folkdance class begins tonight

The Del Valle Folkdancers will offer two classes in international folk dancing this fall, one for beginners and one at an intermediate level.

The beginners class opens tonight at the East Avenue School multi - purpose room from 8 to 10 p.m. and will continue Thursday nights through Dec. 18.

Fee for the beginners class is $10 for adults and $5 for teenagers, with some scholarships available in the case of financial need. The class will acquaint new dancers with basic dance steps, and the art of leading or following a partner. The class includes both couple dances, and no - partner line and circle dances from the Balkans and the Near East.

Dancers who have completed the basic course can join a more advanced club is $10 per quarter for adults and $5 for teens. For more information call 443-1629

Attention, craft people!

"Quality and quantity of talent in the valley is at a peak this year, and I feel we have hardly touched the surface," says Sue Schock who will organize the craft and art - in - action sections of Livermore's Festival '75 slated Oct. 4 and 5.

Craftpersons interested in setting up an outdoor booth or in demonstrating their craft should contact Sue at 443-2336 as soon as possible. Booth operators will be charged a percentage of their sales in lieu of a flat fee to help defray expenses of the festival.

Festival '75, a community festival of the arts, will incorporate a juried art show, photography contest, display and sale of craft items, and performing musicians, dancers and dramatists.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Though you may not be aware of it, you have a way of phrasing things today to inspire listeners. You might forget what you said. They won't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the ability today to turn a dormant situation into something worthwhile for yourself and another who shares this interest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The results of today's efforts will be beneficial for you, because you're willing to co-operate and be helpful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll have a strong desire today to do something special for one you love. You'll do it secretly, without seeking credit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take a little more time to primp today if you're going to appear before new people. All eyes will be focused on you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your keen insights will be put to a profitable use today. Let your hunches guide you in commercial affairs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're able to use words in a masterly fashion today. Put your thoughts on paper — the results may surprise even you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Material things come your way today without too much effort. If you do feel energetic, it's a good time to hunt for bargains.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're far more assertive today than you've been the past few days. If you're set on accomplishing something, you'll not be deterred.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Opportunity presents itself today to take some positive steps toward a secret ambition of yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're very convincing today in swaying others. You should speak out. Your ideas are better than theirs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Important ventures you're involved in have an excellent chance of succeeding in the next few days. Dare to think big.

Your Birthday

Sept. 11, 1975

The coming year will be very rewarding, provided you always act in accordance with your highest ideals. The path may be narrow, but it's also profitable.

4 ♠ 5 ♦ Pass Pass

Opening lead — 5 ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Both East players in an IMP match elected to open with three spades, both Souths over-called with four diamonds in preference to a takeout double, both Wests raised to four spades and both Norths tried five diamonds.

At both tables this was passed around to West. One West player decided to pass on the theory that his partner just wasn't going to have any play for five spades and that, maybe, the five-diamond contract would not be made.

The other West reasoned that while five spades would surely wind up in the soup the five-diamond contract would make and that a sacrifice bid was indicated.

It was an unfortunate decision, since South had to lose three tricks in his diamond contract. However, change the North-South cards a trifle and the decision would have been a mighty good one.

The really good bid with the hand was North's five diamonds. He saved a lot of points, because had he passed East would wrap up the four-spade contract and take it home.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from California wants to know which major suit do you bid when you have four cards in each and partner responds a Stayman two-clubs to your opening notrump.

The answer to this one is that it is a matter of partnership agreement. Some like to bid two spades; others prefer two hearts.

Our own practice is to bid the stronger suit.

Conners — out of the picture

Mike Zampa

The Oakland Raider press book has one picture of Dan Conners on its cover. In it, the middle linebacker is assisting his teammates in wrenching the head off a Boston Patriot runner. Three quarters of Dan's body is lost below the bottom of the frame.

It is dwarfed by a much larger shot of Rodney Allen Rippey singing the National Anthem.

Isn't that the way it always goes. Age being shoved aside for youth.

Conners has heard that axiom before, but never fully understood it till Tuesday, when he was cut by the Raiders. Dan was preparing for his 13th season in Oakland when the guillotine dropped. He has been passed over for Monte Johnson, a 23-year old third-year pro out of Nebraska who still says things like, "I'll even play quarterback if that's how I can get a chance to play."

Conners, 33, out-grew that kind of naive zestfulness quite a few seasons back. It's not that he's lost the desire for football. But after more than a decade as field general for one of the more sophisticated and successful defenses in America, he'd rather pick and choose his spots.

Now that he's been turned out by the only professional employer he's ever had, Conners hopes he can do just that.

There is no word yet on Dan's football future he said yesterday from his Pleasanton home. No telling whether he'll play for somebody else, begin a new life as a nine to five, or merely become another statistic on the labor department's unemployment rolls.

You can't simply rewrite 13-years of your life in a day-and-a-half. There is a sense of quiet urgency, however, because the National Football League season begins in less than two weeks.

"I don't know what the hell to do," Conners says. "I still feel I can play, but then I might not play."

"I could play somewhere, but everything's gotta be right. The money would have to be right."

It will be at least next week, the 33-year old former all-star figures, before he'll hook on with another club if indeed that happens at all.

Dan says he almost certainly will not go to the World Football League. There only one or two teams there in need of a middle-aged veteran's immediate experience, he says. Those would be the title contending clubs. Most of the rest wouldn't have money to spend on a short-term investment like Conners.

"Why would somebody want a 12-year linebacker if Oakland didn't want him?" Conners asks. He's trying to view the situation objectively, and, philosophically.

"It wasn't a shock to be cut. You see it happen all the time. I had a feeling right along that it might happen, with the rumors and all of that."

"It's funny, but this is the first time in my career that I didn't have any injuries or anything. There's no bleeping excuse."

Conners has played in three all-star games since coming out of Miami in 1963, and gained a reputation as an outstanding opportunistic linebacker. He scored five touchdowns during his Oakland career, intercepted 15 passes and fell on 18 fumbles.

More important to the Raiders, he was the play-ground director for the defense, the man who helped sort through the hundred-and-one different sets.

At 6-0, 230, Conners is big enough to withstand the brawling that goes on in the middle of the football field. But last year critics blamed him for a drop off in the Raider rushing defense. It wasn't a highly perceptible flaw, because Oakland dominated its opponents all season. Only in the playoff games was the weakness exposed.

Whether or not Dan was responsible, he has yielded now to the inevitable rise of Johnson. The 6-4, 235 former college lineman glittered last year as the "live" man in Oakland's Orange defense. With Tony Cline injured, Johnson took over the chore of fourth linebacker in the specialty alignment.

Johnson's success touched off speculation that he just might make a fine middle linebacker. The Oakland staff became convinced of that three weeks ago. Given the glut of linebackers on the roster, Conners became expendable.

"It was good," Conners says of his Raider career. "There was no bitterness. It was just part of business."

Dan says he never expected to survive 12 years in the NFL. Like teammate Pete Banaszak, whose fear of waivers is legend now, Conners braced himself for the Grim Reaper.

"I've watched my lifestyle, and I've saved a little along the way, so I can adjust if I get out of football. But going to work five days a week, I don't know about that."

Whether his future is in the NFL or some eight-hour salt mine high rise, Conners and his family of four will remain in their Pleasanton home, situated in an historic poultry raising district.

"At least I'll be the best football player in Chicken Alley," Dan laughs.

New coach praises Glads

HAYWARD — In the final half-hour prior to football practice at Chabot College yesterday, Terry Cagaanan was confronted by one player who asked to leave early for work, another who had to drive his mother to a San Francisco doctor, and yet a third who still hadn't registered for the fall quarter at school.

Accustoming himself to administrative detail has been the biggest transformation for Cagaanan, the 34-year old former red shirt draftee of the Oakland Raiders who became Chabot's head coach this fall.

Other than that, things are much the same as they were under Keith Calkins, Terry says. Calkins coached the team for the past seven seasons, but demoted himself to an assistant's job this year because of family illness.

Under Cagaanan, the program will function as it has in the past. Decisions will be a staff problem, and game philosophies a staff production.

One other thing that won't change, Cagaanan says, is Chabot's high-powered offense. The Gladiators could be devastating this fall, if little used sophomore quarterback Don Moore progresses as expected.

Of the seven players across the offensive line, only two are freshmen, and there is only one first-year player in the backfield. Experience and talent sum it up nicely. The Gladiators are loaded with both.

"Don Moore could be the finest quarterback we've ever had here," says Cagaanan, fully aware that Tim Ireland, the nation's all-time single-season passer, once played at Chabot. "Moore's got a lot of physical talent and savvy," his coach adds. And he has tremendous desire."

Moore will be joined in the backfield by sophomores Rick Camara and Robert Bruce, and freshman Curtis Bledsoe.

Tom Ferguson returns as one of the receivers, along with freshman Al Munday. They will be challenged by Livermore High School's Ron Foreman, who has been a standout during practice. Foreman injured a knee last week, however, and may miss the Gladiators' opener at home Saturday night with Yuba College.

Defense will be Cagaanan's worry this year, because there are only four starters returning.

Among them is David

Shaw, an outstanding tackle from San Leandro. Tony Lagorio and Dave Reno return at linebackers, and Len Eisen is a veteran cornerback.

"We can't make any mistakes on defense this year," Cagaanan says. We can't have teams controlling the ball on us, and we've got to force turnovers, because our offense does not do us any good on the sidelines."

There is a rarity as Chabot heads into its season opener Saturday night, no EBAL players will be in the starting lineup. They will be in evidence, however.

Steve Duncan will do the place kicking for Chabot, and Steve Grant may fill in at quarterback. Both are from Dublin High School. Rob Galant may see action at offensive guard, though two veterans man the starting spots.

Rich Gutierrez of Granada High will probably play at one of the outside linebacker slots.

There is also Foreman, who seems to figure highly in Cagaanan's plans. "He's a great asset to our team," the coach says.

Ron seemed reluctant to play football during the summer, leaning more towards college soccer. After playing in an all-star football game last month, however, he switched back to the gridiron.

"His great success in the all-star game helped influence his decision, I think," Cagaanan said.

Chabot finished 6-3-1 overall last season, and placed third in the Golden Gate Conference.

Don netters top Foothill

Amador High School won both doubles matches to take a 5-2 victory over a young Foothill team in a season-opening East Bay Athletic League tennis match on the losers' courts yesterday.

Gary Barnett and David Norton won the first doubles match, 6-0, 6-1 over Chris Nevas and Mark Schellman. Steve Gianini and Dave Copman won the second match 6-1, 6-2 over Dennis Lee and Jeff Silk.

Amador is co-favored with San Ramon and Monte Vista for the EBAL crown this year. Foothill is rated as a darkhorse despite having no seniors on its squad.

In other EBAL matches, Monte Vista held off Livermore 5-2 and Granada rolled to an easy 6-1 victory over Dublin. Monte Vista also won both of its doubles sets in its victory over Livermore. Rob Overstreet and Eick Overstreet defeated Neil Zurakowski and Vern Cedarlund, 6-2, 6-4 in the first doubles match. The Monte Vista pair of Dan Birdman and Tom Breunier won the second doubles match with a 6-1, 6-2 decision over Mark Johansen and Ken Kemp.

Mike Lacy of Dublin won the Gaels' only match with a 1-6, 7-5, 4-2 forfeit victory over Chris Watchmaker of Livermore. It was the first time Lacy has ever played in high school competition even though he is a senior.

Granada showed its team balance by using nine different players in the competition. Jim Watson and Jeff Mackanic teamed for a 6-1, 6-1 victory for Granada in the first doubles match over Hans Schlicker and Steve Cameron. John Pfeiffer and Dan Belzer completed the Granada doubles sweep with a 6-0, 6-2 victory over pan Russell and Kirk Chan.

Carl Lakin of Granada proved to be the outstanding singles competitor as he took a 6-0, 6-0 victory over Burdine in the third-seeded singles match. Bill Jenkins of Granada also was impressive, taking a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Jim Powers.

In EBAL action today Dublin is at San Ramon, Livermore is at Amador and Foothill is at Granada. Monte Vista is idle.

Ann Landers Put it in writing

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the gal whose sisters, aunts and cousins descended on her mother's house like a pack of vultures and picked the place clean hit very close to home.

The writer signed herself "Can't Stand Grabbers." Well - I hope your advice "MAKE A WILL" was heeded by all those nice people out there who just assume their belongings will go to the people they want to have them.

When my husband's darling mother died, his sister arrived first. She was grief-stricken. For about 15 minutes.

Then she pulled herself together and went through the house like a streak of lightning. When I walked into the bedroom to use the phone I saw drawers open and boxes strewn everywhere. The place looked as if it had been burglarized. I couldn't believe it.

When "sis" left she had all the jewelry, silver and every piece of art worth owning.

She also had her name taped on the best pieces of furniture. "I'll send you some of Mother's nice things," Sis promised as she left.

After the funeral, I received a dozen plastic hangers, a jar of cotton balls, some old clothes and a moth-eaten fur piece.

My husband adored his mother and so did our children. They don't have one thing worth keeping as a memento. Of course the poor darling never wrote a will - and she'd turn over in her grave if she knew what has happened. - Heartsick In Boston

Dear Heartsick: Your letter says it far better than I could - but I'll make another attempt.

MAKE A WILL. It's the only way to be sure your money and personal belongings will go to those you want to have them. Otherwise "The Grabbers" will move in fast.

Also, the attorney in charge of the estate should make certain nothing is removed from the house of the deceased until the will has been read.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't be alone in my misery. Please help us all.

My mother-in-law, for the third time this year, is coming to visit for two weeks.

I could put up with her if she'd just be a guest. But the minute she arrives she begins to clean the house, rearrange the furniture and make suggestions on how to improve the looks of the place. ("Your kitchen needs new curtains. The bathrooms could use a coat of paint," etc.) She starts every sentence with, "Why don't you?"

Now she has started to interfere with the way I feed and dress our child. "He's not getting enough roughage. He needs vitamins. His room is too hot. His play clothes are tacky..."

I find myself getting nervous before each visit. By the time she leaves, I'm on tranquilizers and my husband and I aren't speaking. He says, "She's just trying to help." Get the picture? - Sign Me Berserk

Dear B.: One thing is certain or will never change your mother-in-law, but you can change a few other things.

First: the frequency of her visits. Ask your doctor to inform your husband that his mother's visits are too taxing and should be cut to twice a year.

Second: when your M.I.L. makes suggestions, smile and say, "You're probably right. I'll think about it..." Then develop amnesia.

Third: if she wants to clean your house and rearrange the furniture - let her. Maybe she'll get a hernia.

thence along said extended line south 89° 20' east 5 feet; thence north 0° 47' 30" east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 233.392 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 32 feet to the center line of said Belten Drive; thence along the last mentioned line south 89° 20' east 22.637 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the last mentioned line, as generated by the last mentioned curve easterly on a curve to the right with a radius of 532 feet, a distance of 572.584 feet; thence tangent with the last mentioned curve, south 89° 20' east 80 feet;
